Free the land, and us, too!
Warum Agrarökologie Land braucht
und keine Konzerne

16. Oktober 2019, Welternährungstag

“We will fight to expose and block the insidious appropriation of agroecology. The real solutions to the crises of the climate, malnutrition, and so on, will not come from conforming to the industrial model. We must transform it and build our own local food systems that create new rural–urban links, based on truly agroecological food production by peasants, artisanal fishers, pastoralists, indigenous peoples, urban farmers, and so on. We cannot allow agroecology to be a tool of the industrial food production model: we see it as the essential alternative to that model, and as the means of transforming how we produce and consume food into something better for humanity and the Earth.»
